LINK GOING TO GO TO CONGRESS ANYHOW

Will Camp With Democratic Party and Put Things in Way of Kuhio's Work.

SUCH IS LATEST REPORT

Said to Be Already Mapping Out His Legislative Program for the Session.

McCandless, though defeated, snowed under, told by the voters that they wanted him to stay at home and keep away from Washington, is going to Washington this winter, anyhow.

Portuguese voters in the Punahou district are repeating a rumor from some of the former Democratic leaders that McCandless intends going on to Washington and net as an obstructionist to Kuhio, because the Democrats had elected a majority of members for this coming term.

From the rumors going the rounds McCandless believes that he will be the real power for Hawaii during the present term of congress and will endeavor to have such measures enacted as he and his backers in the last campaign advanced through the medium of their territorial convention platform.

It is said that he has already begun to lay plans to have his land measures put in form to take on to Washington to lay before his own particular friends, particularly Candler, and to have these shoved along through the house, backing whatever measures Kuhio may have to offer.

Hawaiians Also Agog.

The same sort of talk is being made among the Hawaiians, the reappearance of McCandless on the street, with his ante-election smile still in evidence, being coincidental with the starting up of the talk of his "pull" with the Democratic majority of the next house. T. K. Wahiako, a prominent Democratic worker, when he heard that glad news that all was not lost, determined to inform the world through the best possible medium and appeared at the office of The Advertiser with the news, all written out on the back of a handbill which implored voters to vote the straight Democratic ticket. He passed it in for publication, as follows:

"A Straight Talk."

"In yesterday evening's Bulletin the statement is made that 'Boss McCandless is down and out.' I'm very glad of it. That may be all right, but let me tell you the Boss is up and in. We know that Kuhio has been elected as Delegate to congress. Here, let me ask you a question. That is—What could he do when the majority of the house and senate in Washington is carried away by the Democrats. That he couldn't do anything good for his party or his Republican people in this Territory is one thing I know very well. I have formally said, 'The Boss is up and in.' He will communicate with the power over at Washington to lay aside all bad bills (those which are in favor of the Republicans here) that would be presented by Kuhio in the congress. In this way we all can figure Me as an elected Delegate to congress through his influence, only that he couldn't do anything good for his Democrats here, just as bad as Kuhio couldn't do anything good for his Republicans."

"T. K. WAHIAKO."

Still Talk Newspaper. E. M. Watson and Bertram Rivernburgh announced yesterday that when the next campaign came up the Democrats would have a morning paper to back The Advertiser in the political field, and that the town could look forward to have a real rosy time of it. "Then look out for roasts of our fellow citizens," said Mr. Rivernburgh, "officially the secretary to the mayor, 'for whenever a man shows his head the Democratic organ will take a whack at it.'"

Twelve to Three.

One Democrat, two Home Rulers and twelve Republicans will compose the senate when that body convenes in February. When the next campaign comes around the Republicans will have six hold-over senators to commence operations with, a prospect which causes Chairman A. L. C. Atkinson of the territorial central committee to smile. The makeup of the senate will be as follows:

From Oahu—Moore, (hold-over), Democrat; Quinn, (hold-over), Republican; Brown, Republican; Chillingworth, Republican; Judd, Republican; Kalelopu, (short term), Republican.
From Maui—Robinson, (hold-over), Republican; Kalama, (hold-over), Republican; Pali, Republican.
From Hawaii—Baker, (hold-over), Home Ruler; Makekahu, Home Ruler; Hewitt, Republican; Brown, (hold-over).
From Kauai—Fairchild, (hold-over), Republican; Knudsen, Republican.

As to the house it will be almost entirely Republican, the Big Island sending the two or three Democrats and Home Rulers elected out of thirty.

Martin Thinks So.

UNEASINESS FELT BY BEACH FOLK

Rumor Revived That Uncle Sam Is After More Sea Frontage for Big Guns.

Uneasiness exists among Waikiki beach property owners over another rumor that the war department contemplates making further extensions to its beach holdings, to include additional beach frontages toward the Seaside Hotel site.

Since the arrival of Gen. Tasker N. Bliss, commanding the department of California, the rumor spread again, partly based on the acquiring of values of the property which has not so far been added to Uncle Sam's holdings through condemnation proceedings.

Ever since the United States took over a good sized strip of the beach frontage, including the old Afong estate, and others adjoining there, there has been a fear among other owners that eventually theirs would also be taken. J. A. McCandless' property was the last piece to be acquired on the Diamond Head side, while a short time since a small slice was added on the town side.

According to a recent statement by Major Winslow, corps of engineers, in charge of all fortification work on this island, the war department will be actively engaged in building fortifications for the next fifteen years, along Waikiki Beach. In order to put in two fourteen-inch guns a large amount of property had to be taken over, and if more guns are to be added on the Diamond Head side additional property will necessarily have to be acquired.

Sometime ago Major Winslow was asked if the government intended taking over the remainder of the beach frontage to and including the Seaside Hotel site. He stated then that the government had only asked him to get the valuations on the property so that they would be on file in his office and could be given to the war department immediately on receipt of a request for same, whether by cable or by mail.

While Honolulu residents are glad to see the war department so actively engaged in construction work along the beach, there is, however, a hope expressed generally that the famous Waikiki beach section devoted to semi-public uses for bathing, surfing and recreation generally, will not be included, as that part is one of the most valuable public and tourist assets the islands possess.

HAS MESSAGE FOR THE DEAD GENERAL

"Yankee Jim" Determined to Carry Word to General Custer from Rosecrans.

BOZEMAN, Montana, November 1.—"Yankee Jim" has just celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday. "Yankee Jim" may go down in history under his picturesque nickname or under his right name, James George, but certain it is that he has earned a place in the history of the new world, for he is one of the three men who discovered Yellowstone Park. Before the days of the railroad he operated a toll road into the place built by nature—the first path into the park.

Though still vigorous in spite of his years, "Yankee Jim" has one ambition—to deliver a message in death which he could not deliver in life. That is the dispatch from General Rosecrans to General Custer. Had the message reached Custer in time the massacre would not have occurred.

"I must deliver the dispatch to Custer; it is for him, and no one else will get it."

That is the answer the veteran plainsman, scout and prospector gives to all who attempt to obtain the scrap of history from him. He has been offered large amounts of money by the government and by museums, but the old frontiersman clings to the little piece of paper with a tenacity that verges on the fanatic. He refuses to allow it to leave his possession even for a moment for fear it would not be returned.

Lives Much in Past.

One of the most picturesque figures of the picturesque age, "Yankee Jim" lives on his mountain ranch, fifteen miles from the entrance to Yellowstone Park, and dreams of the days that are gone. Occasionally he will tell of the hardships of his dash across the plains that brought him too late to save the ill-fated leader.

He has but one hobby, the cooking of fish. Fifty years of experience over camp fire and ranch range work left him has been offset by the fact that a wave of Democracy has set in on the mainland. In Martin's estimation, McCandless will, when he reaches Washington, carry more weight, as a defeated candidate on the Democratic ticket for delegate, than the actual delegate elected.

WANT ROAD WORK IN BETTER HANDS

Supervisors-Elect Consider Plan to Do Away With Road Supervisorship.

John Wilson, the road supervisor for Honolulu, appointed by the Democratic mayor, may not hold his job under the next administration.

The newly elected board of supervisors, although it has not come together for a caucus, is understood to favor a change in that position, and none are believed to regard Mr. Wilson as the man whom they would wish to have retained at the head of the city road work.

When the present board of supervisors went into office, municipal government was an untried proposition. Neither the mayor nor the supervisors had any very well defined idea of the powers of the board or the mayor, and when it came to appointments there was a bad mixup in which the work of the city government was almost brought to a standstill while questions of right were being fought out in courts.

The newly elected board will have the experience of the present board to review, and will also study the situation closely to find out whether or not the board of supervisors has not more power than the mayor in the final matter of appointments.

There is a disposition to favor City Engineer Gare to take charge of all road work for the good of the city. Just how this can be accomplished is not yet certain, but the road supervisor's job can be abolished by ordinance and the board can refuse to sanction an appropriation for the payment of such an official.

Some of the supervisors, it is understood, are looking at the matter from a practical and business standpoint entirely, and believe that better road work can be accomplished if the road building is under the direction of a competent engineer, and one who is in absolute harmony with the board.

Eben Low is desirous of filling Jim Quinn's shoes as chairman of the roads, bridges and public parks committee. In fact, he announced early in the campaign that he wanted that position, and may get it.

NEW OIL PIPE LINE PROPOSED

Fuel Oil to Be Pumped Through Six-Inch Tube Right Onto Alakea Wharf.

That oil-burning steamers will be frequent callers at Honolulu is evident when it is announced by Marston Campbell, superintendent of public works, that a new pipe line for the liquid fuel will be run down from the big supply tanks to the Alakea wharf.

At present pipe lines connect with the Mauna Kea wharf, near the Ewa end of the harbor, and a line also runs along Queen street, down Fort street and on to Halekuanila street, where the oil is delivered to the electric light works.

The extension of the oil pipe line to the big new wharf at the foot of Alakea street will make it easy for oil-burning steamers to take on their cargo of fuel there.

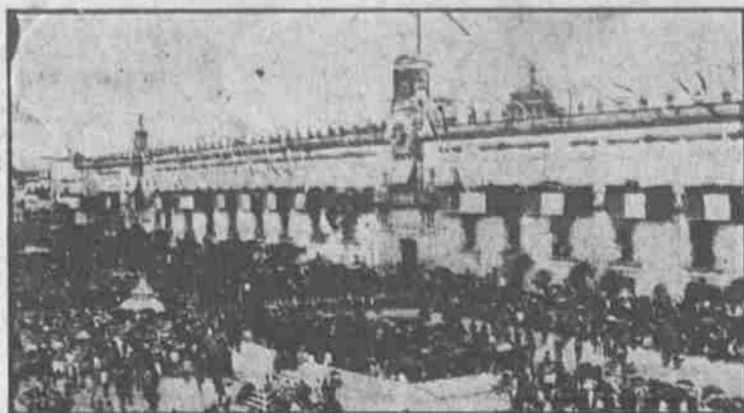

The present pipe that supplies the Inter-Island company and the electric powerhouse is a six-inch one and the oil is pumped through it to its destination. If possible, the extension line will be arranged so as to carry the oil by gravity.

It is planned also to extend a pipe to the new wharf which is to be built on the Waikiki side of the Alakea wharf. The problem of supplying oil-burning steamers on the Waikiki end of the harbor with fuel has been worked out, and within a short time the work of installing the pipe line will be commenced.

BRITISH ELECTORS IN OLD FIGHT

LONDON, November 10.—The government and the opposition have failed to agree on the matter of the vote power of the house of lords, which has been at issue since the lords voted the budget over a year ago. Premier Asquith and his associates have insisted upon curbing the vote power of the upper house, but compromise was attempted. It was announced today that all efforts to reach an agreement had failed, and another appeal to the voters is likely to follow, with the power of the house of lords to veto acts of the commons as the main issue.

LONG LEASE OF THE KING'S LAND

Cornwell Ranch Homestead Pastoral Lots Discussed by Land Board.

There was a meeting of the land board yesterday afternoon at four o'clock in the throne room at the Capitol. Four members of the board were present, and they were R. H. Trent, Frank Andrade, S. C. Dwight and J. F. Brown. The last named member acted as chairman, as the regular president of the board, A. W. Carter, is at present out of the country. W. A. Kinney was another member who could not be present, as he is away on the mainland. Marston Campbell, commissioner of lands, was present in order to give the board any information it might need about the several matters that were discussed.

The only important matter brought up was the proposed opening of pastoral homestead leases on the W. H. Cornwell ranch on Maui. Even this was not settled, as the members thought it better to defer action till the full board could be present.

A long discussion took place about the division of the homestead lots, and finally an agreement was come to that the lots should be of 1000 acres each. Even that was not formally adopted, but the members present all seemed to think that 1000-acre lots were about right. Marston Campbell did not approve of the idea and rather favored the suggestion that the whole block be thrown open as one pastoral lease. However, he said that the matter was up to the board.

The matter of fences engaged the attention of the board for some time. It was decided that the people who got the blocks of lands adjoining the forest reserves should fence their land, but that the others could not be asked to do so.

Low Rent for Land.

As to rent for the homesteads, Trent proposed that fifteen cents an acre per annum for fifteen years would be a fair thing. This seemed to meet with the approval of the members present, but the whole matter will be put up to the full board when it meets.

Some fourteen applications have come in for pastoral leases on the Cornwell lands, and some of the would-be graziers have offered fifteen cents an acre for the use of the land. The old lease was for twenty-one years, and was for the full 10,000 acres. Trent wanted to know how it came about that the land, which belonged to the crown at that time, ever came to be leased to the Cornwells.

Chairman Brown explained that twenty-one years ago the lands were really the private property of the king, and that that personage could do what he liked with the property.

It is probable that one block will be of 1300 acres, as Marston Campbell announced that he had a lot of trees planted on the land, and if that lot was cut up the trees would be destroyed. The 1300 acres will be kept out of the acreage which will be thrown open for homesteads. However, after much talk it was thought better to postpone taking a vote on the question until the next full meeting of the board.

Hilo Masons Want Strip.

A wireless was received from the Hilo masonic lodge, asking that a strip of land twelve feet wide adjoining the new hall, should be put up for auction. Marston Campbell explained that the strip was wanted so as to allow light and air entering the new building. The Knights of Pythias of Hilo are going to erect a new home, and if the strip of land asked for is not granted, the masonic hall would be deprived of all ventilation on one side.

The board decided to grant the petition, and the land will be put up for auction sale. The usual advertising and announcing of the sale were dispensed with.

R. A. Kearns, who wishes to make a home at Haula, applied for permission to take up a three-acre block of land which is situated near the old Catholic church. After some discussion Kearns was granted the right to bid at public action for the lot, and as it is all lava and rocks, he will probably get his block.

Kamama's Plunkia.

When upper Fort street was continued through, some time ago, to Pauoa road, Kamama, a resident of that locality, found himself stranded, as far as reaching the street went. His boundary line did not come within seven feet of the road, and the narrow strip block of him. Kamama therefore petitioned the board that he be allowed to buy the land, and thus be able to get in and out of his house without committing trespass. The strip of earth is only seven feet wide and some ten feet long, so the board decided that it should be put up for public auction. Nobody is likely to try to buy the "estate" over Kamama's head, and he will probably soon be happy.

A communication was received from Ranchowner Monsarrat of Hawaii, and he offered to lease 1485 acres of land from the government at the rate of $50 per annum. It was explained that the place was nothing but rock and right on the coast line. For grazing purposes the land was impossible, but there was a little fresh water spring near the ocean that in times of drought kept cattle alive. As several of the board members know the place well, the request of Monsarrat was granted. The meeting adjourned at half-past five o'clock, and all business had then been finished off.

City of Mexico Is Now Quiet, but Outbreak Against Americans Takes Place in City of Guadalajara.

CITY OF MEXICO, November 11.—The anti-American feeling, which has been running high here for two days, was yesterday transferred to Guadalajara, where for several hours a mob marched the streets of the city, attacked Americans who appeared in public, rioted before the homes and business houses of Americans and destroyed a large amount of property.

So threatening were the demonstrations of the mob against the American consulate that the city was declared under martial law by the authorities and troops were hurried through the streets to prevent an attack upon the consulate. Last night the consulate, the residence of the consul and the property of Americans were guarded by the troops.

The property loss to the American residents of the city is considerable.

Ambassador Takes a Hand.

Henry Lane Wilson, the American ambassador, yesterday called upon Secretary Creel, the Mexican secretary of state, who later returned the call of the American representative. Secretary Creel assured the ambassador that there would be no repetition of the rioting against Americans in the city of Mexico, the authorities having the people well in hand.

Many Demonstrators in Jail.

There were no further disturbances yesterday, but the troubles of Wednesday resulted in the jailing of two hundred and seventeen persons.

Ambassador Wilson in a statement made charges that the municipal police permitted Mexicans to insult the American flag which was displayed from the houses of resident Americans, as well as from the consular and diplomatic offices.

A responsible Mexican newspaper yesterday advocated the boycott of American merchants and business men on the part of Mexicans.

CAMPAIGN WAS ONE OF REAL EDUCATION

The Friend.—It certainly was an educational one. It was such to the surprise of some of our would-be statesmen. For while they inaugurated the campaign with the merest buncombe, they found that the mood of the voters was far more serious. There were big questions to discuss. There were matters of grave public moment that called for honest and serious treatment. Mere ward politics and party shibboleths missed the mark. Unless a man could intelligently discuss the merits of immigration, the just claims of wage-earners, and the necessary conservation of the chief industry, men were bored at his puerilities. The voters have had sent respect for the man who could not talk with becoming ability on matters of such vital importance as came to the front in this campaign.

Some of the campaigners realized the gravity of their responsibility and made a sincere effort to meet the issues with the intelligent discussion that those issues deserved. Such men made the campaign a genuinely educational one. The public is indebted to them. They set a proper standard, and it is to be hoped that men who come to the front in future elections in this Territory will drop all political twaddle, and will show to the voters by their utterances that they have the requisite ability to justify casting of ballots in their behalf.
